REPORT.

Office of the Government Statist,
Melbourne, 31st December 1877.

SIR,

I have the honor to forward herewith the Statistics of Friendly Societies for the year 1876.

2. With a view of affording additional information, the form of the tables has been considerably altered from that adopted in former years.

3. Full particulars respecting each society and branch are now published in one table—the upper portion being devoted to the financial transactions and position of the society, and the lower to its experience of sickness and mortality taken in connection with the age of members. All information respecting any one society is thus to be found on the same page. Page 8, et seq.

4. By presenting information of the nature now given, an important step is made towards supplying the materials necessary to enable the true position of each society to be ascertained, and to afford a basis for investigation respecting the sufficiency of the rates paid by members. If the publication of similar particulars should be continued annually, a mass of information will in a few years be accumulated which will be of the highest value as a guide to the operations not only of the societies at present in existence but of those to be established hereafter.

5. In order still further to facilitate the actuarial investigations and valuations it may be deemed desirable to make, also to accumulate data for the construction of tables, in pursuance of the provisions of the recently passed Friendly Societies Act, a system of cards has been devised—one card being allotted to each member of a Friendly Society. These cards are ruled so as to admit of particulars being entered respecting the sickness experienced and rate of sick pay received by such member, during each year, in connection with his age and date of joining the society, each card being intended to last for a number of years. The cards will be kept in the office of the Government Statist, proper pigeon-holes being devoted to their arrangement and safe custody, and the required particulars will be duly entered each year, from the annual returns of the societies. The necessary printing is now being done, and it is intended to bring the system into operation at once. Friendly Societies Act 1877 (41 Vict. No. 590), sec. 8, subsec. (c).

6. The number of parent societies which furnished returns to the Government Statist in 1876 was identical with that in the former year, and but little change took place in the number of branches of those societies and the number of their members. This will be seen by the following figures :— Table I.

Number of Parent Societies	34 ...	34
Number of Branches...	755 ...	761
Mean Number of Members	45,920 ...	45,957

7. The registered wives of members numbered 28,425 in 1875 and 27,919 in 1876. The falling off in the latter year was therefore 506. Table I.

8. The amount of contribution made by each member is, under ordinary circumstances, 1s. weekly, but extra payments from members joining after a certain Table II.

age, levies, &c., bring the average per member up to something over this rate. In 1875 the average was 1·026s. (about 1s. 0¼d.) per week; and, in 1876, 1·072s. (a fraction in excess of 1s. 0¾d.) per week.

Tables I. and II. 9. The contributions and levies, together with the admission, entrance, and clearance fees, amounted in 1876 to £134,752, and the sick pay, funeral donations, and sums expended on medical attendance and management to £129,062, or £5,690 less. This difference, added to the interest received during the year on moneys invested, amounting to £16,394, and to the sum of £820 resulting from donations, fines, sale of goods, &c., furnishes a total of £22,904, which may be considered to be the profit made by the societies upon the year's transactions.

Table I. 10. The aggregate amount to the credit of the funds of the societies increases from year to year, and this is especially noticeable in the case of the Sick and Funeral Fund. The difference between the amounts to the credit of this fund at the end of 1875 and 1876 is £19,240 in favor of the latter year.

Table I. 11. Adding the two funds together, and dividing the sum by the number of members, it is found that the amount standing to the credit of each member increased from £7 3s. at the end of 1875 to £7 11s. 3d. at the end of 1876.

Table I. 12. The balance to the credit of the Sick and Funeral Funds of the societies at the end of 1876 was £340,139, that to the credit of their Incidental or Management Funds was £11,145. The former amount exceeded by £19,240 that at the end of the previous year, but the latter amount was less by £1,013 than that at the end of 1875.

Table III. 13. The benefits to members of Friendly Societies consist of aliment and medical attendance during sickness, and of payments for funeral expenses. These amounted in the aggregate to £103,540, or at the rate of £2 5s. 2d. per member, in 1875, and to £104,393, or at the rate of £2 5s. 5d. per member, in 1876.

Tables I., II., and III. 14. In 1875 the benefits were to the contributions in the proportion of 83 per cent. In 1876 they were in the proportion of 81½ per cent. In both years they were in the proportion of 64 per cent. to the total income.

Table III. 15. Sums amounting in the aggregate to £24,669, or at the rate of 10s. 9d. per member, were paid for the management of the societies in 1876. This is a great increase upon the amount in the previous year, when the expenses of management were only £16,762, or at the rate of 7s. 3d. per member.

Table III. 16. The period of sickness for which payment was given in 1876 amounted to 52,817 weeks, or 830 weeks less than in 1875. The average per member was 6·9 working days, as against 7 such days in 1875. The year under notice is the first since 1869 in which the average time for which sick pay has been given has not been greater than in the previous year.

Table V. 17. The number of members sick was 8,873 in 1875 and 8,385 in 1876. Some members were sick more than once in both years. In the former year the number of attacks of sickness exceeded the number of members sick by 989, and in the latter by 912.

Table V. 18. In 1875 the average time of each attack of sickness was 5 weeks and 2½ days, and the average time for which each sick member was paid was 6 weeks. In 1876 the average time of each attack was 5 weeks and 4 days, and the average time of payment to each sick member was 6 weeks and 2 days.

Table III. 19. The rates of sick pay vary somewhat in different societies, the usual payment being £1 per week for the first six months; from 10s. to 13s. 4d. per week for the next six months; and from 5s. to 10s. per week for the remainder of the term of disablement. In the societies, taken as a whole, the average weekly amount paid to each sick member was 17s. 4d. in 1875 and 17s. 1d. in 1876. During the last 11 years the highest average was 19s. 1d. in 1866, and the lowest was 16s. 3d. in 1874.

20. In 1875 the deaths of members of Friendly Societies numbered 427, or 9·3 to every 1,000 members living; and in 1876, 452, or 9·84 to every 1,000 members. In the former year the deaths of members' wives numbered 170, and in the latter 239, or 3·7 and 5·2 per 1,000 members living. Table III.

21. The amount paid on the death of a member is, in almost all the societies, £20; and on the death of a wife, £10. The total amount of such payments in 1875 was £10,340, or at the rate of 4s. 6d. to each member; and in 1876, £11,326, or at the rate of 4s. 11d. to each member. Table III.

22. The returns, upon the whole, were sent in not only in a more complete state, but generally in better time than in previous years, and hence the following list, showing the lodges or courts which did not furnish statements, or furnished them in so imperfect a condition that it was found impossible to publish them, is lighter than similar lists given in former reports :—

List of Societies and Branches which furnished incomplete returns or no returns for the year 1876.

23. It will be observed that 9 branches of the Independent Order of Rechabites, 8 branches of the Sons and Daughters of Temperance, 1 branch of the Order of St. Andrew, 7 branches of the Hibernian Australasian Catholic Benefit Society, and 3 branches of the Protestant Alliance, either sent in no returns for 1876, or furnished returns in an incomplete state; also that of the Independent Order of Rechabites, 1 branch had not rendered any returns for two years and 1 for three years; and of the Hibernian Australasian Catholic Benefit Society, 2 branches had not rendered any returns for two years and 1 branch for three years.

24. All the other Friendly Societies furnished complete returns for the whole of their branches. The names of the parent societies and the number of branches of each from which returns were received will be found in Table VI.

25. In the Friendly Societies Bill which has recently become law it was originally provided that those duties which by the former Act were allotted to the Registrar-General, but which, as a matter of fact, have been performed by the Government Statist ever since the creation of his department, should devolve upon the Registrar of Friendly Societies. During the passage of the Bill through Parliament, however, an alteration was made providing that the Government Statist should not only continue to perform these duties, but should undertake additional duties therein set forth.

26. I pointed out last year that the work in connection with the Friendly Societies was already the occasion of a strain upon this department, almost in excess of that which, with its present strength, it was able to bear, and acted as a hindrance upon its more legitimate work. The further labors imposed under the new Statute will, I need not say, press still more heavily. I trust therefore I may look forward to further assistance being granted to enable full effect to be given to the provisions of the Act.

See Act No. 590, sec. 13, subsec. III.; also sec. 15, subsec. VIII., and sec. 30, subsec. II.

27. I deem it my duty to draw attention to the fact that the law is systematically broken by a large number of societies in the matter of taking moneys from one fund to apply to the purposes of another, the fund robbed in this manner being, in almost all cases, the benefit fund, and the moneys taken devoted towards defraying the expenses of management. This malversation of funds was always illegal, but until the recently passed Friendly Societies Act came into operation it was not easy to deal with the offender. No such difficulty, however, exists under the new law, and prompt measures will undoubtedly be taken to put a stop to a practice which militates against the best interests of Friendly Societies, and is directly in opposition to the principles on which they were founded and according to which they should be conducted.

28. The total number of societies or branches which, according to the returns of 1876, had illegally allowed moneys belonging to the Sick and Funeral Fund to be used for the purposes of the Incidental or Management Fund was 246, and the total amount so misappropriated was £6,590 18s. 7d.

See Act No. 590, sec. 13., subsec. 1 d.

29. As this Report and attached tables will, as usual, be widely circulated amongst the members of Friendly Societies, it is well I should take the opportunity of reminding them that it is prescribed by the new Statute that all returns of receipts, expenditure, &c., are to be made out to the 31st December of each year, and therefore it will be necessary for the societies to arrange to bring down their future balances to that date.

I have the honor to be, Sir,

Your most obedient servant,

HENRY HEYLYN HAYTER,

Government Statist.

The Honorable the Chief Secretary.
